LOST IN SAVANNA

Lost In Savanna, the new range by Zoemou, is inspired by handcrafted African jewellery. Beyond their use for self adornment each piece celebrates artistic, religious, spiritual and cultural elements. African heritage is visible in each uniquely crafted piece of Zoemou Jewellery.

Africa is the birthplace of mankind and human civilisation. It is where people first made and wore jewellery. Pea-sized beads have been unearthed dating back 75,000 years and as time has moved on African craftsmen improved their jewellery making techniques. Zoemou has extended these themes and craft to produce a modern take on incredibly beautiful history. Ebony wood, is the most luxurious and opulent of all timber and was highly regarded in Western Africa, being called the “fruit of the gods”. Turquoise is perhaps the oldest stone in man’s history, the talisman of kings, shamans and warriors. Zoemou jewels wants its wearer to feel each piece is prized as a symbol of power, luck and protection as it seen in Africa to adorn yourself with such elements.

Each Zoemou piece has its own significant importance. Each Zoemou piece is named an authentic African name, whether is be the Nurisha earrings (enlighten) or Ameena ring (trustworthy), owning one of these stunning pieces provides hope, wisdom and well-being to its owner.
